—— 1628-29. They petition the House of Commons for redress from the Dutch.

—— 1631-32. They establish the third joint-stock.

—— 1635-36. They petition the king against the licence granted to Sir William Courten.

—— 1636-37. They disapprove of the convention made with the Portuguese, and petition the king for redress for the depredations of Courten's ships.

—— 1639-40. They procure the revocation of Courten's licence, and project a fourth joint-stock.

—— 1640-41. They fail to procure a fourth joint-stock.

—— 1641-42. They apply to Lord Cottington and the House of Commons for payment of the bonds granted by the king as security for the pepper debt.

—— 1649-50. They project a fourth joint-stock, and make application to the Council of State for the renewal of their privileges.

—— 1650-51. They petition Parliament, and are referred to the Council of State.

—— 1652-53. They petition against the Dutch, and are encouraged by the Council of State.

COURT OF DIRECTORS—continued.

—— 1653-54. They petition Cromwell to be allowed to make reprisals on the Dutch.

—— 1654-55. They petition Cromwell for the cession of Bombay and Bassein.

—— 1655-56. They lend Cromwell £50,000, and have their rights acknowledged.

—— 1656-57. The Protector promises a new charter.

—— 1657-58. They unite with the "merchant adventurers" and form a new joint-stock.

—— 1660-61. They petition King Charles the Second to restore their charter and grant exclusive privileges.

—— 1661. Charter granted April 3.

—— 1662-63. Gave instructions to Sir George Oxenden to assist the Earl of Marlborough in taking possession of Bombay, and entered into an agreement with the Royal African Company.

—— 1666-67. The Court address the king to issue a proclamation against Sir Edward Winter.

—— 1667-68. They receive from King Charles the Island of Bombay.

—— 1668-69. They memorialise the Privy Council on the treaty of Breda.

—— 1669-70. They new-model their system of administration at Surat, and despatch ships to renew the trade at Bantam.

—— 1671-72. They draw up regulations for Bombay and St Helena, and attempt to trade with China, Tonquin, Tywan, and Japan.

——1672-73. They memorialise the king, praying that their affairs may be taken into consideration in the event of any treaty with the Dutch.

—— 1673-74. They prohibit the Bombay Government from making any treaty with the Portuguese.

—— 1674-75. They give instructions to Surat and Fort St George for their conduct towards the native powers, Dutch and Portuguese, and prohibit seamen from settling at Bombay as colonists.

—— 1675-76. They form a new plan of administration for Surat and Bombay.

—— 1676-77. They obtain a charter from the King to establish a mint at Bombay.

—— 1678-79. They reduce the Presidency of Surat to an agency, and attempt to trade at Canton.

—— 1680-81. They form a new plan for the government of Fort St George and for Bantam.

—— 1681-82. They restore Surat to the rank of a Presidency.

—— 1682-83. They dispute with the Levant Company; attempt to cultivate flax in Bengal; and recommend a bank to be established at Madras.

—— 1683-84. They send two fleets to recover the Persian and Bantam trade.

—— 1684. They attempt to check interlopers, and appoint a secret committee to report to the King on the Bombay revolts. They also determine to make Acheen the centre of the southern trade.

—— 1685-86. They resolve to prosecute interlopers in England. They order seat of government to be transferred from Surat to Bombay. They censure their agents in Bengal for timidity, and order that hostilities shall be commenced against the Mogul and Nabob of Dacca in order to obtain possession of Chittagong. They also plan to make war in Siam, and attempt the conquest of Salsette.

—— 1686-87. They determine to establish a factory at Mergee and a mint at Madras, the last by the permission of the King. They establish a settlement at Bencoolen in Sumatra.

—— 1687-88. They determine to constitute Bombay a regency, and obtain a charter for erecting Madras into a corporation.

—— 1688-89. They determine to rule at Bombay and reduce Surat to an agency. They encourage the Armenians in Persia, and the settlers at St Helena are advised to remove to Bombay.

—— Madras raised to a Presidency, 1653. Cromwell renewed the Charter of the Company in 1657; and this renewal confirmed by Charles II., April 3, 1661. Charles II. gave Bombay to the Company, March 27, 1668. The French East India Company was formed in 1664; and the foundation of their settlement at Pondicherry was laid ten years afterwards. The East India Company obtained a renewal of their Charter in 1677, as also in 1693 and in 1702, when the old and new Companies united. The Charter was again renewed, in 1730, to 1766, and no very considerable alteration was made till 1783, when Mr Fox brought forward his India Bill. In 1793 the Company's Charter was prolonged till 1814; the propriety of granting the Charter was again discussed in 1813, and the Company ceased to monopolise the trade with India. In 1814 the Charter of the East India Company was renewed till April 10, 1831. In 1833 the Company was deprived of its commercial character, but continued to govern India till 1858, when the government was assumed by the Crown.

—— great mutiny of the Bengal army began May 9, 1857. Her Majesty's proclamation of peace issued November 1, 1858.

Indore. The founder of the family of Holkar was Mulhar Rao, born in 1693. He served under the Peishwa, and obtained a jaghire, in 1728, north of the Nerbudda. His jaghire was increased in 1731, and Indore was granted to him in 1733. He died in 1767. The most famous of his descendants was Jeswunt Rao Holkar, who, in October 1802, obtained victory over the Peishwa and Scindia; he was defeated at Furruckabad, November 17, 1804, by General Lake. Holkar made a treaty with the British in 1805, in which he relinquished all claims in Tonk, Rampoora, Bhoondee, and places north of the Bhoondee hills. Jeswunt Rao Holkar died in 1811, and was succeeded by Mulhar Rao in 1817. The Regency commenced hostilities with the British, but were defeated, on December 21, 1817, at Mahidpore. A treaty was concluded with the British Government on January 18, 1818. Mulhar Rao Holkar died in 1833, and was succeeded by his adopted son, Martund Rao Holkar. He was shortly afterwards dispossessed by Hurree Rao Holkar, who was succeeded by Kumdee Rao Holkar. The country was then governed by a Regency, until, in February 1852, the nominee of the British Government, Mulkerjee, ascended the guddee.

INDORE, the principal place of the territory of the same name, was built by the widow of Mulhar Rao Holkar in 1767. It was occupied by a British force, 1804, but restored in 1805. In the year 1857 there was an outbreak amongst the native troops; many Europeans were murdered, and the resident, Colonel Durand, fled. Order was eventually restored, and the murderers were punished, December 1857, by Sir Robert Hamilton and Sir Hugh Rose.
